The way we work reflects the type of company that we want to be and how we are seen by everyone that interacts with us.

We want to be a company in which our clients, employees, suppliers, shareholders, and society in general, can trust. To achieve this, we must clearly communicate to our stakeholders the principles that guide our actions.

This document is intended to be a response to that need: it describes our Business Principles and the ethical standards we follow as a company for all things we do.

Business partners and suppliers are an important part of our value chain, and so we must require that they also adopt our Principles or their own equivalent ones so as to ensure our compliance with what we defend.

INTRODUCTION

1. What are the Telefónica Business Principles?

They are principles, standards and behaviours that must govern everything we say and do during our daily activities, when working individually and as a team. We have an individual and shared responsibility to act with integrity, transparency, and commitment in order to generate and establish a trusted relationship with all our stakeholders, and these Principles are our guide to fulfilling that responsibility.

2. Why are they important?

Because they reflect the type of company we want to be, they help us build and maintain long-term relationships with our stakeholders, and they directly affect our professionalism and productivity. In addition, they enable us to establish business relations with associates and partners who have similar principles, with the shared goal of contributing to making the world a better place to live.

These Principles must serve as a guide for all our actions and decisions when communicating with others, both within and outside the company.

3. Who do they apply to?

These Principles are directed towards everyone who forms part of this company, independent of where we perform our activities or of our specific role or function in the company. These Principles are also directed at our suppliers and business partners, with the goal that our principles are complied with throughout the entire value chain.
Adherence to our Business Principles

Everyone’s observance of these Principles will help the company act in an ethical and responsible manner for all its stakeholders and society in general, which is why it is important that we have tools available so we can act when we believe compliance with these principles, or an internal standard approved under these Principles, is lacking.

Any customer, employee, supplier, shareholder, partner or other stakeholder must have an anonymous and secure communication channel that enables communication of doubts or reports regarding compliance with these Principles. As such, employees have the Reports Channel while other stakeholders can communicate with us through the Responsible Business Channel.

In both cases, the company will diligently and respectfully follow up with any received communication, and is committed to responding and acting, when necessary, within a reasonable period of time.

In cases in which the Company confirms that an employee has consciously violated any of these Principles, the company reserves the right to act, either imposing the corresponding penalty or taking the allowed legal action according to the applicable penal and/or employment arrangements in each case.
OUR CORE PRINCIPLES

Our Responsible Business Principles arise from three basic values: integrity, commitment and transparency, values which are essential in promoting the relationship of trust we wish to sustain with our stakeholders.

INTEGRITY

Integrity for us means honesty and acting in accordance with non-negotiable ethical standards.

COMMITMENT

The relationship we undertake with each of our stakeholder groups is based on a commitment to always act in a responsible manner and to stand by our commitments.

TRANSPARENCY

We commit to providing our customers, employees, suppliers, shareholders and society in general with clear and accessible information about our strategy and our activities and that they may ask questions or raise doubts they may have in this respect at any time.

By facilitating connectivity and offering added value services, we are particularly careful when protecting our customers in these areas, inasmuch as we can influence the control over these rights.

Security and respect for data privacy are the foundation of our business and are of paramount concern when designing our services. We are committed to compliance with all regulation in force in the markets in which we operate. In any case, our customers must know what personal data we collect, how and what we use it for and they must be able to control its use.

In order to fulfil our commitment of responsibility throughout our entire value chain, we demand that our business partners and suppliers comply with our Business Principles or ones equivalent to our own, in addition to requiring compliance with our Sustainable Supply Chain Policy. Everyone within the company performs purchases or contracting in order to fulfil our functions. It is important that we assume our individual responsibilities to work with responsible suppliers and partners and perform the reasonable controls to ensure, over and above the quality of the delivered product or provided service, that at all times they act in a responsible manner regarding their stakeholders.

We use a global purchasing system that promotes competition and guarantees transparency and equal opportunities for all our current or potential partners and suppliers.
Protecting the environment is essential to sustainable development, and as companies we have a responsibility to contribute to its conservation. Telefónica works to minimise its negative impact on the environment and to generate services that help mitigate the harmful effects of other sectors.

We take on specific commitments in key aspects, such as energy efficiency, emissions reduction, and the use of renewable energies, thus contributing to decarbonisation of the economy. We implement environmental management systems that, in addition to guaranteeing compliance with environmental legislation, help us improve efficiency of our resources consumption, reduce or reuse our waste, and minimise our impact on biodiversity.
