Commenting on the announcement, José María Álvarez-Pallete, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, said:

"Telefónica continues to show its strength in the midst of an unusual situation we are experiencing, in which digitalisation and connectivity will continue to be key to economic recovery.

Thanks to the implementation of the strategy presented a year ago and the robustness of our business, trends are improving in the third quarter, with a clear recovery in commercial activity in our key markets. We are growing in revenue compared to the previous quarter. Furthermore, we continue to optimise the operating cash flow and move forward in line with our objective.

Cash flow generation is also a proof of strength, reaching 1,579 million euros in the third quarter and exceeding both the cash flow posted in the previous quarter and year on year. This allows us to continue reducing debt, which falls by another 525 million euros in the quarter and by more than 1,000 million so far this year.

We are facing the current scenario with a solid liquidity position, which exceeds 22,400 million euros and allows us to cover debt maturities for the next two years.

At Telefónica we reaffirm our commitment to a fair, inclusive and sustainable digitalisation. Proof of it, we are bringing our zero net emissions target to 2025".
