Telefónica reaches an agreement with UEFA for the broadcasting of the UEFA Champions League and the UEFA Europa League until the 2023/2024 season

- Movistar+ strengthens its commitment to soccer by closing a major agreement with UEFA for the broadcasting of the top European competitions for the upcoming cycle, thus reinforcing its sports content on the platform.
- Telefónica's television platform will also broadcast the UEFA Super Cup, the UEFA Youth League and see the birth of the UEFA Europa Conference League, an inclusive continental competition that will be held as of September 2021.
- The agreement grants Movistar all broadcasting rights to the main European competitions for all its customers, both residential and HORECAS (hotels, restaurants, cafés, public premises, etc.) in the territories of Spain and Andorra.
- Movistar is a key player in the construction and sustainability of sport, working with the main partners to create value and narrow the gap between fans and competition.

Madrid, 2 July 2020. Telefónica (Movistar+) has reached a major agreement with UEFA for the broadcasting of the UEFA Champions League and the UEFA Europa League until the 2023/2024 season. The top European soccer club competitions will continue to be part of La Casa del Fútbol in this new cycle.

This agreement reinforces the platform's commitment to soccer as the main axis of its sports content. It is now 30 years of commitment in which Movistar+ has fought to raise this sport to a new category beyond broadcasting, putting special focus on production, technology and innovation.

Statements by Emilio Gayo, Executive President of Telefónica España:

"This agreement with UEFA is an important step in Movistar's strategy linked to the world of sport. Our Movistar+ platform continues to work after three decades to continue making football accessible in our country. A specialized team, the quality of everything surrounding the competition and differential production values are our hallmark. With Movistar, our client will always have the best sport and the latest technology to quarantee an added value entertainment experience, beyond the broadcasts".

The agreement guarantees Telefónica (Movistar+) all broadcasting rights to the main European competitions for all its customers, both in residential and HORECAS (hotels, restaurants, cafés, public premises, etc.) formats in the territories of Spain and Andorra.

Along with the two big competitions at European level, it will be possible to enjoy a major event like the UEFA Super Cup, with the two winners competing at continental level. Customers can also watch the matches of the UEFA Youth League, with great promises of
