These new plans include Disney+, further strengthening O2's TV entertainment proposition, which is led by Movistar Plus+ and also includes Netflix.

With this update, O2 takes another step forward in its commitment to delivering a more comprehensive experience for its customers, offering more and better services by combining high-speed fibre broadband, robust high-performance mobile connectivity, and premium television. In this way, O2 adapts to the needs of modern households by providing a more complete and flexible entertainment experience.

The integration of these platforms provides access to thousands of titles across multiple devices, with high-quality streaming and instant availability wherever customers are.

Improvements to O2 Cloud

Recently, O2 increased the free storage capacity of O2 Cloud from 1 TB to 10 TB and extended the service to customers on its Mobile Plan. All O2 users with a mobile line now have access to 10 TB of cloud storage for photos, videos, and documents at no additional cost.

The new 10 TB cloud capacity significantly enhances the service's capabilities, offering customers what is effectively near-unlimited storage while helping them save substantially on additional subscription services. This capacity is equivalent to storing between 2 and 3 million photos, more than 500 hours of 4K video, or 10 million documents.
